••• Training

On completion of an installation project a full training schedule will be rolled out. This training plan takes into account the full range of experience on your teams and can be used as a great tool to get other members and groups interested. The training sessions often combine with choir and praise group practices where we can also offer advise, training or help if required.

The Alpha Audio Systems installation team are very experienced in the design and installation of high tech systems into a diverse range of buildings and places of worship. Our team of technicians are used to working in environments where exceptional working practices and skills are required to make the installation seamless and in keeping with the nature of the building. As well as having formal qualifications in acoustics and our own in-house electrician, we use the latest software available to aide our technicians in the design of the system and also to predict the coverage and sound levels within the seating environment. This philosophy is applied whatever the size of the contract, attention to detail is paramount.

You are not alone! Unlike most other suppliers in the sector we are happy to come and help with your first couple of services. That first airing of a new system can be a nervous occasion. One of our engineers will be on hand to help through the initial bedding in and to evaluate the level of further training that may be required, if any!

••• Friendly Advice

We speak English not tech talk! Give us a call if you want advice on anything technical to do with your church, praise group or upcoming events, we are more than happy to advise and point you in the right direction.

❖ Experience

Alpha Audio Systems has a large portfolio of House of Worship and Church fixed installations throughout Ireland.

Our experience in creating solutions in difficult environments has made us one of the leading companies in this sector. We pride ourselves on the standard of excellence we take in our installations. Installation encompasses many situations, from two compact speakers to a custom designed audio and video system.

❖ Planning

Every venue has different requirements and our design team will initially take time to visit the building, sit down and discuss what the system is required to do, then produce a detailed quotation.

Irrespective of the size of budget, our design team will be able to advise on a selection of equipment perfectly matched to your church's needs.

We are very experienced in working on buildings where cable routes and fixing systems are of particular importance to the architecture of the building.

Hard of hearing systems are a specialty of the installation department and we have many solutions to suit your requirements.

❖ Church Sound & Vision Training

Alpha Audio Systems provides on site training for operators of your AV equipment. We have tremendous experience of sound and vision engineering within churches. We offer free technical advice on your existing system and can provide training tailored to your current equipment and style of worship. The seminars are designed to provide several levels of training to suit the needs of the delegates, so we have entry level seminars leading up to advanced seminars featuring the latest in digital technology.

Alpha Audio Systems has earned an enviable reputation for their work in the fixed installation sector, becoming technical advisors to the Presbyterian Church in Ireland in 2007.

❖ Christian Conference & Concert Sectors

Alpha Audio Systems can also offer equipment and technical expertise in the Christian conference and concert sectors. Our staff have experience ranging from small church nativities through to large-scale conferences and concerts both here in the province, Scotland and England.

We have portable recording systems, which will allow your praise band to make a professional cd, or perhaps the choir would like to record an album to help with fundraising? Whatever the occasion we can offer professional recording on site. Session musicians are also available if required.

❖ Ethos

Alpha Audio is an ethical company with Christian Management and values. Some of our staff are on church committees so we have a full understanding of church government and processes. We are happy to report to your management committees if required.
